	В	Joe Burrow	CIN	$8,000	$6,900	BAL	40.5	7	11	19	23.79		0.66	15.56	L	STRONG	Burrow has been playing incredibly well lately and this Ravens' secondary isn't anything special. He's a little contrarian here based on the game total and the perception that Baltimore has a really good defense.
		Daniel Jones	NYG	$7,400	$5,600	MIN	48	10	26	5	19.12		0.65	44.25	М	GPP	Jones is my favorite GPP target on the slate. He had a monster game against the Vikings a few weeks ago as the Giants had to throw it a ton while playing from behind. I love the matchup and I love his mobility and rushing upside.
		Brock Purdy	SF	$7,100	$5,300	SEA	42	3	17	17	12.25		0.60	0.75	М	GPP	Purdy might not get the volume we want in attempts, but he has played efficiently and has some upside at this price if he can toss a pair of TDs.

		Christian McCaffrey	SF	$9,800	$8,900	SEA	42	13	25	81	4	19.75	60.00%	21.84	L	CASH	McCaffrey might see a slight reduction in volume with Mitchell back, but gets goal line work and the ultra-valuable receiving work, too. The match up is as good as it gets.
		Saquon Barkley	NYG	$8,800	$7,900	MIN	48	7	19	68	12	22.00	52.30%	18.5	М	GPP	Barkley had 20+ against the Vikes last time and is uber-talented. The Giants will surely feed him the ball one way or the other in this game.
		Dalvin Cook	MIN	$7,800	$7,000	NYG	48	28	32	77	13	18.19	61.10%	14.58	м	STRONG	You can run on the Giants, it's just a matter of IF the Vikings will stick with the run. Cook also gets some passing down work, too, and feels too cheap for his team's total and his steady involvement.
	R	Travis Etienne Jr.	JAX	$7,100	$6,300	LAC	47.5	20	29	73	7	15.38	47.90%	13.12	L	CASH	ETN is a lock for cash games for me with this matchup, and I think the Jags can move the ball and put up some points in this one.
		J.K. Dobbins	BAL	$6,600	$5,700	CIN	40.5	2	14	69	27	12.38	18.90%	10.9	М	GPP	If Baltimore can win this game, it will be by controlling the clock with the run game. Dobbins is talented and runs behind a solid Offensive line. He should be a somewhat contrarian play, too.
		Devin Singletary	BUF	$6,200	$5,500	MIA	43.5	11	4	64	14	13.80	42.10%	11.49	М	GPP	Singletary is always a bit risky as the Bills have Cook in the mix and Josh Allen likes to run the ball down around the goal line, too. But he does get some targets in the passing game and is cheap exposure to the Bills.
		Jeff Wilson Jr.	MIA	$6,000	$5,400	BUF	43.5	16	3	62	25	12.00	30.00%	10.41	н	GPP	Mostert is looking dicey for this one, so we could see Wilson get most of the work and the Dolphins will definitely attempt to run the ball on Buffalo to control the clock and keep Josh Allen Off the field.
		Elijah Mitchell	SF	$5,500	$4,700	SEA	42	13	25	81	4	10.75	9.60%	8.72	Н	GPP	Mitchell is just a deep league play. He won't play more than maybe a third of the snaps, but he could vulture a TD, you just never know.

His price point and projected opportunities in this matchup is too good to pass up. James lines up in the slot a lot, and I favor Hodgins more for his matchup, but we saw Richie have a big game against Minnesota last time and the volume could still be there.

Chase is simply a stud and not many guys can cover him. He played well last week against Baltimore before getting yanked early as they had a big lead and he absolutely crushed them last season. Lamb has been on an absolute tear the last month and the Cowboys get a nice home matchup here against the Bucs, who have struggled to stop opposing passing games. Diggs in cash, please. He's getting nearly 10 targets a game and is one of the safest plays on the slate. Allen should be peppered with targets this week with Mike Williams out and the Jags being a pass-funnel defense. Higgins is a nice pivot off Chase for less money and I definitely want some Bengals exposure here. Slot receivers against the Niners has been a sneaky spot this year and we should expect a lot of volume for the Seahawks receivers against this elite rushing defense. Kirk had a big game last week and has been the main guy most of the year for Jacksonville. It's hard to predict if it's him or Zay Jones most week, but just play some of both. Zay is way too cheap for what we've seen him do this year, it's that simple. He's just boom/bust, that's all. Hodgins is a core play for me. His price point and projected opportunities in this matchup is too good to pass up. James lines up in the slot a lot, and I favor Hodgins more for his matchup, but we saw Richie have a big game against Minnesota last time and the volume could still be there. Kittle is in a smash spot here against the Seahawks who continue to get pummeled by TEs. Purdy likes him as a RZ target, too, but he's too pricey for cash, stick to GPPs and stacks. Hockenson absolutely murdered the Giants three weeks ago with a 13-109 line and two touchdowns. He continues to be a target monster in this MIN Offense (much to Adam
